

ABSTRACT

A photodetector comprising: at least one electron transporting organic material; and at least one hole transporting material, wherein said at least one electron transporting organic material has an ionization potential of more than 5.5 eV.